Dear Admiral:

Thanks very much for the news in your letter of April 29th. It is always fine to hear from you, and I am only sorry that we have to get your news by letter instead of getting it personally.

STAT

[ ] the man you wrote about, has already been selected to work for us, and we are now awaiting his security clearances.

The story of your visit, with all the shooting and fishing certainly sounds wonderful, and I know you are having a most enjoyable time, and it unquestionably will help subdue the effects of that operation.

With very best regards, believe me,

Sincerely,

Dear "Hilly"--

STAT I am writing hurriedly to advise you that a very good friend of mine named [redacted] left here by steamer last night on his way to (1) put his boy in the Academy and (2) call on you with regard to his application for a job -- which I believe is being processed.

STAT [redacted] speaks perfect Spanish, has lived abroad many years (always with his feet on the ground) and has a most attractive personality. His wife is also most charming. The company he represented here had to close their office due to Chilean import restrictions. During the latter days of the war I recommended [redacted] for the post as Secretary to the [redacted]

STAT [redacted] I am told that his performance in this capacity was highly satisfactory. At any rate the record will show! I hope you will have time to see him when he calls.

STA

This visit has been most delightful and interesting. We have spent most of our time shooting and fishing and recovering from that damaged operation of nearly three years ago. I still get a bit dizzy when I climb stairs but the rest cure is doing a lot of good.

I hope you are enjoying the very interesting and important job. I know you are doing it well!!

With best regards--

Sincerely,

"Tip" Merrill
